
Business quiz helps homeless

Building and property consultant Tuffin Ferraby Taylor held its eighth annual business quiz in Bristol recently, raising almost £5,000 for Novas, a charity working with homeless people.

Property and construction professionals joined TFT for an evening of beer and brain-teasers, with each team raising £275 for Novas as the entry fee.

After several rounds, first place went to structural engineer WA Fairhurst & Partners, with planning consultant White Young Green and lawyer Veale Wasbrough coming second and third respectively.

Sarah Minns, head of housing and support for Novas, said: “This significant donation will make a fantastic contribution to Novas’ work in Bristol, benefiting homeless men and women.”
